A Note to Parents

The Exploring World Geography Student Review Pack is a tool to measure your student's progress as he or she studies Exploring World Geography. It includes three books: the Student Review Book, the Quiz and Exam Book, and the Guide for Parents and Answer Key. This material is intended to enhance your student's study of geography, the assigned literature, and worldview.

Please do not let it become a burden. Students should focus on learning about the issues, the people, and the scope of world geography, as they enjoy the literature and the primary documents and grow in their understanding of worldview. We pray you and your student have a successful journey around the world!

Student Review Book

The Student Review Book includes review questions on the lessons and most of the original sources in the World Geography Gazetteer, map skills assignments, and literary analysis of and questions on the twelve literature titles we suggest students read as they study Exploring World Geography. The material in the Student Review is arranged in the order in which a student will come to it as they study the course. The assignment box at the end of each lesson in Exploring World Geography Part 1 and Part 2 prompts your student to refer to these components at the appropriate time.

Review Questions. Many parents require their students to write out answers to these questions on paper or on a computer; however, that is certainly not required. Other parents and students discuss the questions orally, and some parents use them for family discussion.

Map Skills Assignments. Students need to know how to use maps, what to look for and not look for on maps, and how we carry around mental maps that can be accurate or inaccurate. These assignments will help your student become familiar with maps, both traditional maps and digital maps we use in GPS devices and apps.

Literary Analysis. We have carefully selected the literature titles that students read with this course. If you want your student simply to read and enjoy the books, we think that is wonderful. If you would like them to dig a little deeper and analyze the literature, we included the tools for that in this book. As we said above, please do not let any of this material become a burden.

Following this Note to Parents, we have included "What Do You Think About What He Thinks? A Primer for Analysis of Non-Fiction" (to be read after Lesson 1) and "Who, What, How, Why, and Why Not: A Primer for Literary Analysis of Fiction" (to be read after Lesson 36). Your student will be given a reminder when it is time for him or her to read these sections.

Quiz and Exam Book

The Quiz and Exam Book contains geography quizzes and also periodic comprehensive exams in geography, literature, and worldview. The assignment box at the end of each fifth lesson in Exploring World Geography Parts 1 and Part 2 prompts your student to take a quiz and to take the comprehensive exams six times throughout the course. Each of these exams includes material from five units. We have printed the Quiz and Exam Book on perforated pages so that you can tear out one at a time and have your student write directly on that piece of paper.

Preparing for Quizzes. To prepare for a geography quiz, the student should study the review questions and answers for the first four lessons from that unit.

Unit 8 Map Skills Assignment

Projection and Distortion

We pointed out in Lesson 7 that projection of the round earth's surface onto a flat map allows us to use information about the earth's surface in practical ways. The tradeoff is that such an action distorts the presentation of the earth's surface. We discussed various ways that people have projected the surface of the earth and how these have attempted to limit the distortion presented. People who use maps have determined how to use maps despite the distortion. Review the descriptions of these projections and the illustrations of them in Lesson 7.

It is important to remember that the surface of the earth is so huge compared to the relatively small areas in which we live that the small, flat maps we use such as road maps still represent the round surface of the earth but the distortion used in this projection is so small as to be inconsequential. In other words, you do not have to be concerned about the road map you use leading you off course when you are driving two hours to Grandma's house. If she lived in Greenland, that would be another matter.

10. Do the majority of people in the world share your worldview?

Literary Analysis

A Long Walk to Water Linda Sue Park

A Long Walk to Water has two parallel narratives that eventually intersect: the story of Nya and the story of Salva Dut. Also, though the book is written as fiction, the narrative of Salva Dut is based on a real person and his real experiences. The author organized the information and events of Salva Dut's life into a story. Almost every story has a plot, or a chronology in which the events unfold.

In the following analysis, we will look at A Long Walk to Water (specifically the narrative of Salva Dut) through the lens of Freytag's Pyramid, which you read about on page 6. Below are the elements of plot according to Freytag's Pyramid. Refer back to the diagram and definitions for Freytag's Pyramid as we look at each element and how the author uses it in A Long Walk to Water.

Exposition: laying out the situation and background, introducing the characters.

Look at pages 1-4 of A Long Walk to Water. Write down at least three things the author tells us to help us quickly get to know Salva Dut and the life he leads?

Inciting incident: something that gets the story moving.

Look at the lower half of page 5 and upper half of page 6 in A Long Walk to Water. How would you describe in one sentence this event that serves as the story's inciting incident?

Rising action: building drama; each significant event is called a complication.

Chapters 2-13 (pages 8-82) in A Long Walk to Water contain the rising action of Salva Dut's story. This section includes Salva's long journeys on foot to refugee camps in Ethiopia and Kenya. It covers many years, includes some of the important people he met along the way, and tells of the many times when his life was spared. Flip briefly through this section to jog your memory. Write down three significant events from the rising action.

Climax: the single key event or turning point; the moment of greatest tension.

What was the turning point in A Long Walk to Water? What happened that changed Salva Dut's life completely? (Hint: See page 89.) Write one to two sentences explaining how the climax turned the story in a different direction.

Falling action: events that occur as a result of the climax.

As a result of the climax, Salva comes to live in the United States. How would you summarize Salva's adjustment to the United States in one to two sentences?

Resolution: the event in which the main issue is resolved.

In A Long Walk to Water, the resolution brings together Salva's background in Sudan, the new opportunities he had after moving to the United States, and his dream to find a way to help his countrymen. The resolution for Salva was also the resolution for Nya and her village. What happened that provided the resolution for both parallel narratives? Summarize this in one to two sentences.

Denouement (day-new-maw): the finishing out and tying up of the details of the story.

In the denouement of A Long Walk to Water, we learn of a chain of good effects that will come to Nya's village because of the well. See page 113. How would you describe the book's message of hope and redemption?

Unit 9 Map Skills Assignment

Absolute and Relative Location

Geographers have given us two ways to describe the location of a given place. We can describe it in absolute terms—its location on the surface of the earth—or in relative terms—how far away it is and in what direction it is from another location.

Both ways have their uses. Sometimes we just want to know that Duluth is in northern Minnesota, at 46.7867° north latitude, 92.1005° west longitude. At other times we want to know that Duluth is at the western end of Lake Superior, 144 air miles north of Minneapolis and 1,193 air miles east of Boise, Idaho.

The system of parallels of latitude and meridians of longitude helps us with both absolute and relative location. We have given you Duluth's absolute location. If we say that X is at X latitude and X longitude, and we know how long each degree of measurement is, we have an idea of where the other location is and how far away it is.

You can find the following information on the Internet or in a world atlas if it has a mileage chart.

Find the absolute location of Tokyo, Japan, in terms of its latitude and longitude.

Find the relative location of Tokyo in terms of its distance from Los Angeles, California.

Find the absolute location of your hometown in terms of its latitude and longitude.

Find the relative location of your hometown in terms of its distance from Washington, D.C.

You will find it helpful—and fascinating—to become familiar with satellite and high altitude images of the earth's surface. On the Internet you can find images of your house and other small areas, and you can also see images of large areas of cities or parts of states. The quality of satellite imagery has increased greatly over the decades, providing more and more detail of the surface of the earth and the things people have built on it.

Mapping apps, such as Google Maps, and various NASA websites, including <https://worldview.earthdata.nasa.gov>, provide easy access to satellite imagery.

Look at the satellite images in this curriculum on pages 36 and 133 in Part 1 and pages 641 and 666 in Part 2. What can you see, and what can you not see?

As you look at these images, be amazed at the accuracy of maps that cartographers drew before they had high altitude perspectives.
